Julius Caesar was NOT Italian!

By JOEL HAWKINS / Weekly World News

ROME — Controversial historian Mario Bonaffini received hundreds of death threats and was actually forced into hiding after the publication of his explosive new book, Julius Caesar Was NOT Italian!

And far from being a spoof, the book is backed up by decades of solid research that proves Caesar came to Rome from northern Europe and was of Scandinavian or Germanic descent.

"I printed the truth — and if the truth hurts, so be it," Dr. Bonaffini told reporters before death threats drove him into hiding late last month.

"Caesar rose to power and ruled a Roman empire that still stands as one of the greatest civilizations the world has ever seen.

"Until now, Italians took enormous pride in the fact that their genes had produced such a man. But my research proves that this pride was misguided. Caesar was certainly not Italian."

According to Dr. Bonaffini's research, Caesar arrived in Rome when his parents migrated south to what is now Italy around 100 B.C. The death of his parents during a flu epidemic in 70 B.C. left the toddling Caesar without a home.

By a twist of fate, he was adopted by the influential Roman family that produced a long line of Roman leaders, most of whom carried the generic title "caesar."

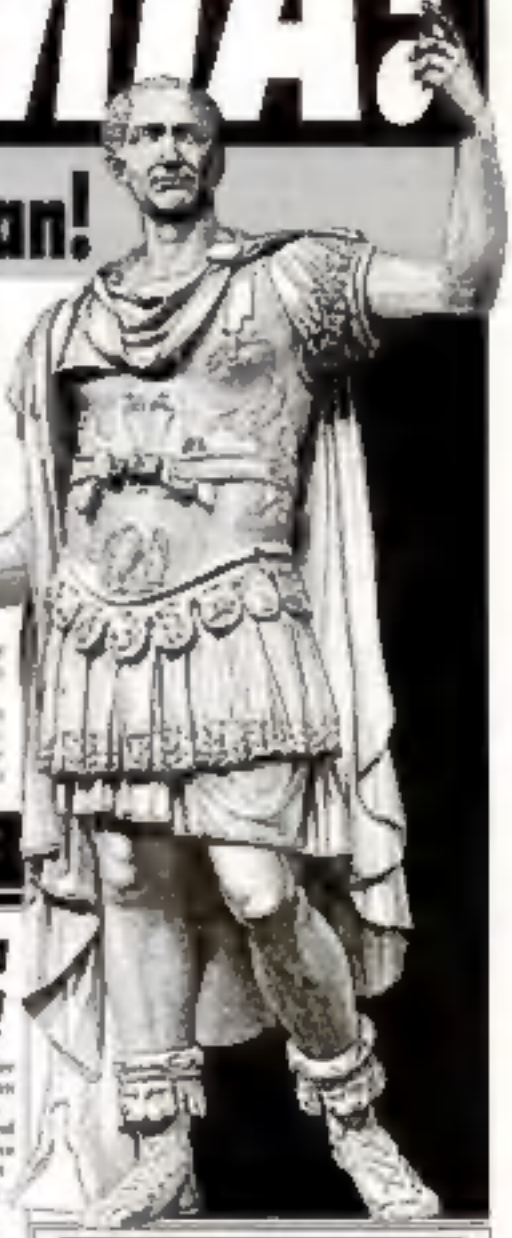
He went on to become the greatest ruler of ancient times, leading a society and culture that continues to influence our thinking about politics, architecture and the arts today.

Dr. Bonaffini's book outraged fellow historian Franco Brugnoli, who doesn't dispute the controversial author's research — but argues that Julius Caesar "was a Roman at heart regardless of his descent."

"Caesar was revered by Romans in Rome and in that sense, he was a Roman himself," said Dr. Brugnoli. "It really doesn't matter who his parents were or where he was born."

While Dr. Bonaffini remains in hiding, his book is selling like hot cakes. A spokesman for publisher Fiasco-Genoa said: "The public is eating it up."

NOT AN ITALIAN STALLION: Julius Caesar was not even a Roman, says an historian.



Boxer wakes up from two-week coma — and knocks out his doctor!

HEAVYWEIGHT Gerhard Kohler

A boxer who had been in a coma for two weeks stunned his grieving family when he came to, sprung up in his hospital bed — and knocked out the doctor who had been working to save his life!

Heavyweight Gerhard Kohler had slipped into a coma after he was knocked out June 11 in a match in Munich, Germany. And he probably would have died if it hadn't been the jaw that laid him out on the floor. "I believe Mr. Kohler still thought he was in a boxing match," said Dr. Johann Wenge, who saw the incident and reported his colleague.

Dr. Kornbeck suffered only a mild concussion and recovered from the blow. But the knuckle sandwich was a cruel twist to the two weeks he spent carrying Kohler out of a comatose state. He doesn't regret the special interest he took in the boxer.

"I've been a big boxing fan all my life and to see this physically fit athlete in a coma was very disturbing to me," he said. "I wanted to help him recover with as permanent damage."

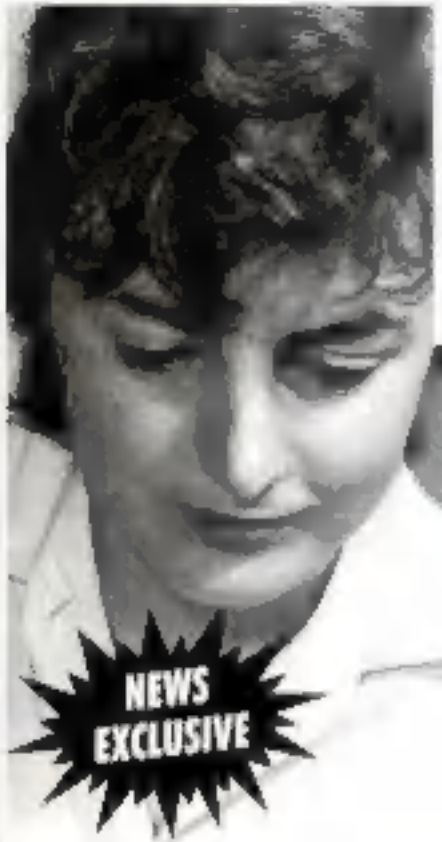
WOMAN RETURNS FROM HEAVEN WITH LETTER FROM GOD!



MYSTIFIED Agnes McIntyre holding letter from God.

CHURCH OFFICIALS are keeping the contents of the letter secret. They don't believe the world is ready to hear God's message.

NEWS EXCLUSIVE

PERTH, Australia — A heart patient who died on the operating table suddenly snapped back to life — and showed stunned surgeons a letter that experts say is from God Himself!

By ANN VICTORIA
World News

Vatican sources are calling the seven-page text "absolutely authentic." They say it contains a vital message to the world.

Although the Pope has not officially confirmed the letter's existence, insiders say it's being held at the Vatican where a team of scientists continues running a battery of tests on it.

"The message is hand-written in golden ink on paper woven through with a material very similar to silk," said the highly placed religious official.

"But our physicists say there's no material exactly like it anywhere on Earth."

The letter mysteriously appeared in the left hand of Agnes McIntyre nearly half an hour after she was pronounced dead.

"I watched it happen and I still don't believe it," says Dr. Phillip Wain. Mrs. McIntyre's cardiologist.

"She was dead in every medically acceptable sense of the word.

"We did all we could to revive her. Frankly, we'd given up.

"Suddenly her eyes just popped open and she told us she'd returned from the dead with a message from God.

"We were delighted to see her alive but thought this 'God' business was just hysterical raving — until we saw those papers in her hand."

The letter's contents are being kept secret because church leaders aren't sure whether the world is ready to hear them.

But the Vatican source believes God gave the letter to all mankind as he has released the danger of polluting our lakes and rivers. Apparently there will be dire consequences for polluters and litterers in the afterlife.

● One lengthy section urges people to help stranded motorists whose cars break down on the highway.

"At least offer to phone a repair shop for them," says the letter.

● God is asking all people to give up smoking pipe tobacco. The pope calls pipes, "an abomination before God."

● World peace will only come about when we make our own homes peaceful, says the text.

Dentist gets revenge on wife's lover

. . . by pulling out all his teeth!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

HAMBURG, Germany — Vengeful dentist Dr. Hermann Uhrdahl got so ticked off when he learned his leggy wife Wilhelmina was having an affair that he lured her lover in for a checkup — and yanked out every tooth in his mouth!

Hotheaded Hermann, 38, was barred from practicing dentistry after admitting he sedated unsuspecting Stefan Pfaike and pulled all his teeth while he was too fuzzy to fight back.

"The man was my patient, but he was supposed to be one of my very best friends besides," the defrocked dim told reporters. "And then all of a sudden I find out he's been carrying on with my wife behind my back for three years, maybe more.

"He thought he was so damn handsome and obviously Wilhelmina did, too. I just wanted her to see what pretty boy would look like without all that fancy dental work I did for him. It cost me my career, everything I'd worked for all my life — but by God, I think it was worth it."

NOW TOOTHLESS: Stefan Pfaike learned a lesson he'll never forget.

The indignant dentist's downfall began the afternoon he strolled into a ritzy restaurant for lunch and spotted Stefan and Wilhelmina cuddling at a corner table.

"I was so shocked, I didn't know what to do, so I just sort of backpedaled out of there before they saw me," heartsick Hermann recalled. "But I had to get to the bottom of it, so I started pressuring some of my friends at the country club and finally they told me the whole sordid story. Stefan, the guy I'd loved like a brother, had been sleeping with my wife for years and I never had a clue.

"I knew right then I was going to have to make him pay."

So the jealous fellow lured Stefan into the office, put him under — and plucked out every tooth in his rotten cruddy mouth.

"I sent my receptionist and my hygienist away so they couldn't be held responsible for what I was about to do, and then I went to work on him," cold-hearted Hermann said, bragging that he yanked his teeth out, put them in a drinking glass — then called Wilhelmina down to the office and handed them over to her.

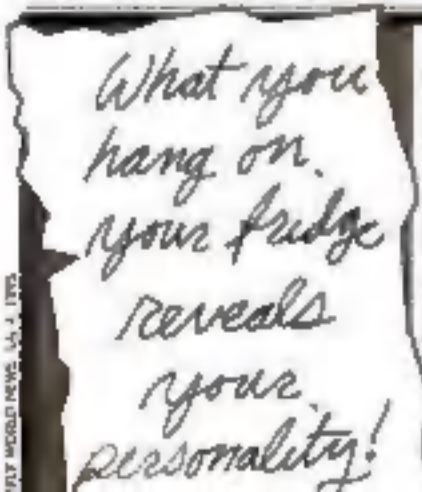
"Stefan had come around by then, and the two of them were so startled they just stared at each other — too dumbfounded to even complain."

But stunned Stefan, 33, has done a lot of complaining since then — and recently filed a whopping $1.3 million lawsuit against his not-so-friendly dentist.

"My mouth was so sore I couldn't eat anything but apple sauce for six weeks," groaned the casanova bachelor. "And now I'm stuck wearing dentures for the rest of my life.

"Boy, it's hard to believe that man once had the nerve to call himself my friend."

DON'T MESS AROUND with your dentist — it could cost you a few teeth!



The stuff you stick on your refrigerator door reveals a lot about you, says an expert.

"Your fridge door is like your own personal billboard. It shows what's in your heart and mind," says psychologist David Turkat.

Here, according to Dr. Turkat, are what some popular fridge door items tell about your personality:

■ Love notes, photos of loved ones: Honesty and commitment are very important to you. You keep your promises and expect others to keep theirs. For you, actions speak louder than words.

■ Appointment reminders, important phone numbers: You tend to be a dreamer and need constant reminders to bring you back to earth. Pleasant and sociable, you're a good friend and a loyal spouse.

■ Diet tips, recipes: A goal-oriented romantic, you try to pack as many activities as possible into each day. You hate wasting your time and try your best to be perfect.

■ Children's drawings and test results marked with an "A": Caring and generous, you like to boost others' self-esteem. You're a giver, not a taker — and you bend over backward to help others.

■ Diet tips, recipes: A goal-oriented romantic, you try to pack as many activities as possible into each day. You hate wasting your time and try your best to be perfect.

■ Humorous cartoons, slogans: You enjoy the lighter side of life and try not to let sad events get you down. You enjoy analyzing other people's relationships.

■ Postcards from others: Friendship and traditional values mean more to you than material things.

■ Birthday cards or valentines: Confident and self-assured, you believe you're special — and you want everyone else to know it too.

Hot new book reveals:

HOW YOU CAN DIVORCE-PROOF YOUR MARRIAGE!

By DAVID WHITE / Weekly World News

You can keep love alive and burning forever and make your marriage divorce-proof by following a few simple rules, a blockbuster new book reveals.

Relationships don't happen — we create them, says Drs. Melvyn Kinder and Connell Cowan, co-authors of the book Women Men Love/Women Men Leave.

"You are in control. You are in a position to keep love alive," said Dr. Kinder.

Here are their rules for keeping love alive:

● Remember love may be dormant, but it never dies. You may think you've "fallen out of love," but the love you felt in the past still exists. It's up to you to rekindle the spark that remains and work out any problems with your partner that led you to believe your love has died.

● Remember a mate is not a solution to all your problems. "Many people think that their lack of self-worth will evaporate when they marry," Dr. Kinder said. "Don't look to a mate to transform you into another person or make you happy. Your mate is not responsible for meeting all your needs."

● Realize that love is about acceptance, not change. "It's a mistake to think you can change your mate's basic personality," Dr. Cowan pointed out. "Love means accepting your mate's ingrained flaws and quirks."

● Say what you feel. Just because you believe you and your partner are soul mates, don't expect your mate to read your mind. Tell your partner how you feel or what your needs are.

● Remember, it's not what you say, it's what you do that counts most. To keep your love alive, show true warmth as a day-in-day basis with thoughtful gestures.

● Realize that infidelity always poisons love. "The notion that an affair is a casual thing with no consequences on the marriage is a fallacy," Dr. Cowan said. "Honor and loyalty are crucial to any intimate relationship."

● Don't blame your partner for all your hurts, disappointments or failures. Recognize that you are responsible for your own happiness.

● Remember, giving is contagious. If you are more willing to give, your mate will be, too.

85-year-old priest mugged during confession!

NEW YORK CITY — A man walked into a church and asked the 85-year-old priest to hear his confession — then mugged the elderly padre for $20!

Cops say Rev. Raymond Deedon of St. Vincent Ferrer Church in Brooklyn trusted a man who came in off the street and asked for money for food.

When the kindly clergyman gave the man some change, he asked to confess his sins.

"They go into the confessional and he grabs the priest's arm through the screen and threatens to break it unless the priest gives him more money," said a police spokesman.

"He relieved the priest of $20."

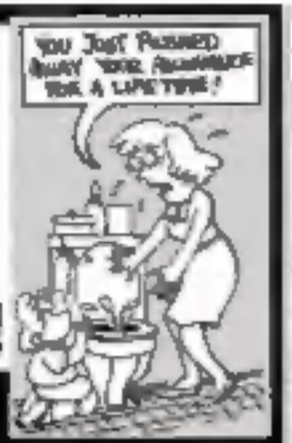
Terror tot flushes $12,500 in jewelry down toilet!



NICE, France — Mischievous tyke Paul DeSean, 2, got tired of playing with the shiny trinkets he found lying on the bathroom counter, so he flushed them down the toilet — disposing of his mom's $12,500 jewelry collection!

Paul's mother Nicole had removed her diamond engagement ring, her wedding ring and a diamond-and-ruby hand ring to do the family laundry and laid all three on the counter.

When his mom left to answer the phone, curious Paul played with the jewelry until he got bored with it, then flushed it away.

"The minute I realized what he'd done, I cried my eyes out because my poor husband had spent his life savings to buy those things for me," said heartsick Nicole. "But I can't really blame Paul. Leaving those rings there was my mistake — the biggest mistake of my life."

Sex-crazed? EAT CORN FLAKES!

By TOM STONE | Weekly World News

Kellogg's Corn Flakes were invented to lower sexual drives . . . nut juice was once thought to be a potent love potion . . . and one Indian tribe actually practiced cross-dressing!

FASCINATING FACTS ABOUT LOVE & LUST!

These are just a few of the little-known offbeat facts about sex revealed by experts at the prestigious Kinsey Institute, which has been conducting sex research since 1947.

"Sex has probably been a topic of interest since the first human beings," observed Dr. June Reinisch. "There are cave paintings that are sexual in nature."

Amazingly, some very popular foods were created to curb people's amorous nature.

"Sylvester Graham invented the graham cracker because he believed having sex more than once a month was bad for your health," said Dr. Reinisch. Graham believed eating his crackers in the morning would reduce a person's lust for the day.

"His disciple, John Harvey Kellogg, also wanted to squelch sexual fires," she said. "He invented Corn Flakes for what he believed were their ability to reduce lust and decrease sexual behavior!"

Maggie Hertes, a spokesman for the Institute, offered some other fascinating facts:

● The ancient Greek philosopher Aristotle recommended that if a woman wanted to conceive a boy, she should lie on her right side after sex . . . but if she wanted a girl she should lie on her left.

● At the turn of the century, cat juice, pheasant tongues, badger testes and even rhinoceros horns were all believed to be aphrodisiacs.

● One North American Indian tribe — the Nahana — encouraged transvestites. If a couple had too many daughters and needed a son to hunt for them in their old age, they chose one of their daughters to be raised as a male.

When the girl was about 8, the dried ovaries of a bear were tied to her belt and she lived the rest of her life as a man.

BREAKFAST CLASSIC: Corn flakes were developed by John Harvey Kellogg to make folks less hot-blooded.

YOUR FAVORITE DRINK REVEALS YOUR PERSONALITY

Your favorite beverage reveals a lot about your personality, says psychologist José Malondez of Mexico City.

Here's his analysis of the personalities of people who prefer the following beverages:

HARD LIQUOR

Those who like liquor straight or "on the rocks" are hard-driving and take their responsibilities seriously.

Scotch drinkers are "thinker-doers"; gin drinkers know how to relax; vodka drinkers generously share the credit for any good fortune; bourbon drinkers enjoy accumulating wealth; rum drinkers like to spend money; and whiskey drinkers like to join organizations that can help them become more successful individuals.

MIXED DRINKS

People who prefer these drinks are spontaneous and delight in doing the unexpected. Manhattan drinkers are jet-setters; Daiquiri drinkers are troublemakers; martini sippers, well-informed; and Mai-tai drinkers, romantic.

SOFT DRINKS

Folks who drink soda are lighthearted, fun-loving people. They like to stay on top of the latest fashion trends.

WINE

People who like wine are good planning friends, especially with influential people. Those who like dry white wine are extremely sophisticated; rosé, Blanc and Chablis drinkers are sensitive to others' needs; Chianti and Burgundy drinkers are cautious; champagne drinkers, skilled entertainers; sangria or port drinkers value family ties; and sherry cooler drinkers can get along with almost anyone.

BEER

Beer drinkers are loyal, very patriotic and insist on "telling it like it is."

FRUIT JUICE

Juice lovers are charitable "do-gooders."

COFFEE OR TEA

Those who like these beverages are good conversationalists and effective communicators.

MILK

Those who prefer milk are affectionate and family-oriented.

WATER

People who prefer water take pride in being able to "get by" on very little. They are neat and organized.

AMAZING HOME

You can mix up your own miracle medicines to cure dozens of common ailments, a top herbalist says — and you'll find the ingredients right at your local supermarket!

The powerful home remedies are inexpensive and easy to make, according to Jude C. Williams, herbalist and author of the bestselling book Jude's Herbal Home Remedies. And because they are natural, they are safer than many high-priced prescription drugs.

"Herbs have always contributed to human health," says Mrs. Williams. "Most of our modern medicines are derived from the wild herbs. Herbs are a natural way to treat many illnesses.

"Most herbs taken for treatment will pass harmlessly through the system if not needed by the body. Can you say the same for prescription drugs?

"But remember — herbs are not meant to take the place of your family doctor. They are for simple illnesses that you can treat at home."

Here, from the herbalist's fascinating book, are 25 home remedies for common illnesses and complaints:

ACNE

After cleaning the face thoroughly, rub the skin with fresh onion juice. Rinse well after 15 minutes. Repeat every day.

ALLERGIES

Mix 2 tablespoons vinegar and 2 tablespoons honey with a cup of water. Drink the mixture before meals to relieve allergy symptoms.

ANEMIA

Two teaspoons each of blackstrap molasses and apple cider vinegar added to a cup of water or tea should help you build up your blood.

ARTHRITIS

Add 1 cup of unhulled barley to 2 quarts of boiling water and cook for 3 hours. Strain this barley tea, refrigerate and drink 1 cup daily.

ASTHMA

Simmer 1 cup of milk with a tablespoon of fresh grated horseradish

BAD BREATH

Mix 1 tablespoon of allspice with a cup of hot water. Use mixture as a mouthwash and gargle.

BALDNESS

Add 2 teaspoons of cayenne pepper to a cup of olive oil. Rub balding areas with this mixture every day.

COLDS

Mix 1 tablespoon honey and ½ teaspoon each ginger and cinnamon with a cup of steamed milk. Drink this soothing beverage to ease discomfort.

COLD SORES

To a cup of boiling water add 1 teaspoon of dried sage. Steep for 10 minutes, strain, mix with 1 teaspoon of ginger and sweeten with honey. Drink 1 cups of the mixture

DANDRUFF

In a cup of hot water, dissolve 10 aspirins. Pour over head, massage into scalp for 10 minutes, then rinse with a mixture of vinegar and water. Use after every shampoo until dandruff disappears.

DEPRESSION

Add a handful of fresh, chopped rosemary to a bottle of wine and allow it to steep for four days. Strain, store and use a tablespoon at a time as needed.

EYE IRRITATION

FLU

Add 1 ounce of dried sage to 2 quarts boiling water. Mix well with the juice of 1 lemon and 1 orange. Add an ounce of honey, cover and allow to steep for an hour, then strain, repeat and drink as needed to reduce symptoms.

GAS

Crush 1 ounce of sage leaves, pour a quart of boiling water over them and add 5 ounces of honey. Steep covered for several hours, until liquid is cool. Strain and store in the refrigerator so you can drink it as needed for gas.

HEADACHES

To a cup of fresh chopped peppermint add 2 cups boiling water. Steep for 5 minutes, strain, sweeten and add lemon to taste. A cup of this brew is relaxing and effective.

HICCUPS

Eating 1 teaspoon of sugar should stop the hiccups immediately. If that doesn't work, try breathing into a paper bag for a minute or two.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Make a spicy tea of 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper and 1 cup hot water. Drink a cup of this brew daily. Or make a tea of ½ cup of ground watermelon seeds simmered in 1 qtd of water for 15 minutes and sweetened with honey.

INSOMNIA

A half hour before bedtime, drink a cup of warm milk with 1 tablespoons honey and 2 teaspoons of lemon juice. Or try inducing sleep by yawning repeatedly.

MOTION SICKNESS

Mix 1 teaspoon fresh ground ginger in a cup of boiling water. Allow to brew for 10 minutes. Then strain, sweeten with honey and drink as a tea.

PROSTATE PROBLEMS

Eat pumpkin seeds daily or make a tea by simmering 4 ounces of whole pumpkin seeds in 1 quart of water for 10 minutes. Cool but don't strain. Drink a couple of glasses a day as needed.

SUNBURN

As soon as possible, dab vinegar over burned area. Apply several times and pain will disappear quickly.

SINUS PROBLEMS

Mix 2 cups of very acid water with 1 tablespoon of Epsom salts and 2 teaspoons of bicarbonate of soda. Dip a cloth into the cold mixture and place over sinus area. When cloth warms, dip it in the liquid again and replace until stuffiness disappears.

TOOTHACHE

A couple of drops of vanilla placed directly on an aching tooth should dispel the pain in a short time.

ULCERS

Eat a daily serving of yogurt. This basic food helps destroy bacteria that cause the formation of excess stomach acids.

WARTS

Apply the white sticky sap from the stem of a dandelion flower directly to a wart. Repeat several times a day.

KILL THE 'BAD MAN' WHO MURDERED MY MOM!

BRAVE little Cliff O'Sullivan Jr. approaches the court on his father Cliff's knee to testify against the man who killed his mother.

[illegible] pleads [illegible] for vengeance!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Weekly World News

VENTURA, Calif. — You could have heard a pin drop in the crowded courtroom when 6-year-old Cliff O'Sullivan Jr. looked straight at the evil man who killed his mom and told [illegible] judge why the scumbag should get the death sentence.

KILLER: Mark Scott Thornton.

"All I wanted to say was how I feel about what happened to my mom. It was a very bad thing," the brave little boy said.

"All I think is that what the bad man did to my mom should happen to him. It's really sad for my family 'cause she was one of the greatest mothers I've met."

Cutthroat Mark Scott Thornton, who kidnapped and gunned down 19-year-old Kellie O'Sullivan during a 1993 car jacking, kept his back to the youngster and his head bowed.

Thornton, 30, abducted Cliff's mother as she left [illegible] to use her car in a shopping [illegible] where he shot her in the chest and back.

After dumping her body in a canyon the [illegible] killer drove her Ford Explorer to Simi Valley where he kidnapped a 13-year-old girl and held her captive for five days before cops arrested him and rescued her in a Las Vegas [illegible].

Twelve days after Mrs. O'Sullivan's disappearance, searchers found the murdered mom's decomposed body.

Her heartbroken hubby Cliff, was in court when a jury found Thornton guilty of first-degree murder and recommended the death penalty. And he was with his son when the boy asked Judge Charles R. McGrath to carry out the jury's wishes.

The judge obliged, saying the crime was too heinous to merit any penalty other than death.

The victim's grieving husband said he was pleased with the sentence.

"The system has worked. Now we can pick up the pieces and get on with our lives," he remarked.

Italian churches faking miracles!

ROME — Authorities say Italian churches are faking miracles by planting phony tears in the eyes of holy statues, causing them to appear to cry!

"These 'weeping Madonnas' — there are over a hundred of them — now draw lots of tourists," said Rainan Police Lt. Alfredo Pastini.

"That means big revenue for these little towns and villages.

"There's evidence that these statues are being tampered with."

Q I have heard that Carroll O'Connor's last conversation with his suicidal son was a heartbreaker. What went down?

— Maurice F., Omaha, Neb.

A O'Connor told TV Guide he's been having nightmares since that telephone call with his son Hugh and suspects it had never taken the call the boy might still be alive. He says he begged Hugh to get help for his drug problems. "He said, 'No, I think I'm going to end myself today.'" the actor recalled. "I said, 'Hugh, why do you say those things? Why don't you let me come and get you?' And he said, 'No Pops, gotta go fishing.'" O'Connor called police right after that conversation, but they arrived at Hugh's place moments after the young man shot himself. "I keep thinking that maybe if I'd done the right thing, refused that ... that he wouldn't have shot himself," a grieving O'Connor said. "I ask myself if telling me added to his compulsion to do it."

Q Is gorgeous Johnny Depp anything like the super-lover he plays in Don Juan DeMarco? Sign me ...

— Sincerely Hoping Sr. Des Moines, Iowa

A Sorry, the man is a shy guy, a retiring type who says he would rather spend his life happily wed to the same woman than cuss from blossom to blossom like Don Juan. "I just can't relate to a guy who can say, 'I am the world's greatest lover,'" says the darkly handsome Depp. "I could never in my life say anything remotely like that. That's not me at all. But when I see people celebrating their 10th wedding anniversary, I get a real warm glow inside. I think it's incredible and an romantic to be with one person for so long. I can see myself being married to supermodel Kate Moss for 50 years. When we do get married it wouldn't be a big showbiz marriage. It would be a real affair — that's the way I like things."

Husband Gere's ex says Billy was constantly gagging himself on smelly sandwiches and never bothered to brush his teeth before their smooching scenes.

Q I heard that Duchess Fergie has frittered away so much money that she's dead broke. What's the story?
— Tina W., Lansing, Mich.

THE DUCHESS OF DEBT: Fergie.

A If she's not broke, she's close to it. The Duchess has run up so many debts that her credit card was rejected recently when she tried to make a paltry little $150 purchase at a department store. But not to worry. Queen Elizabeth II has dispatched a team of high-falutin money managers to straighten out the gal so her wayward daughter-in-law can get back on track.

A No one's ever done a survey, but recent events may give us a clue to the answer. It seems that Kenna Reeves was a hunk at kissing and actually had to take LESSONS on smooching techniques. To improve his pucker power, producers of his new film A Walk in the Clouds required Reeves to enjoy repast at Liam Neeson, Richard Gere and Kevin Costner. Man kidnaps women's cats — then demands sex for return of their pets!

TOMCAT [illegible] the cat which his owner claimed a ruthless catnapper.

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

LOS ANGELES — Baffled lawmen are searching for a sicko who prowls the city stealing cats from shapely ladies — then forcing the frantic gals to have sex with him to get their kitties back!

Dumbfounded detectives say at least six women have let the cadaverous creep have his way with them, while a dozen others have refused to give in to the catnapper's demands.

"This guy is a real jerk, but unfortunately, he's true to his word," said an incensed investigator.

"Those women who agree to have sex with him get their cats back safe and sound — but those who defy him never see their pets again."

Cops say the cad apparently kidnapped his first kitty in July 1984 when he broke into the suburban home of single secretary Danielle Richards and made off with her precious tomcat Teddy.

HEARTBROKEN Danielle Richards

"Teddy was my little buddy, my best friend," recalled an agitated Danielle, 24. "Then I came home one day and my bedroom window had been pried open and Teddy was gone.

"I knew right off what had happened because the burn had left me a nice typed note telling me just what I'd have to do to get Teddy back."

The lout instructed devoted Danielle to unlock her backdoor around 10 p.m. then to crawl into bed with all the lights out to await his arrival.

"If you do as I say, the cat will be returned to you safe and sound," the ransom note read. "CALL THE POLICE and the cat will be put dead."

The distraught lady was so terrified for poor Teddy that she originally planned to do as the catnapper demanded. But she changed her mind at the last minute and called the police.

"The police came out and set a trap for the guy, but he must have caught on because he never showed up," shemurmured. Danielle recalled "I knew when I refused to obey him that I'd never see my little friend again, and I was right [illegible] but I couldn't do what he wanted, even to save Teddy's life."

But police say at least six other kitchen women have followed the burglar's repeat visits. [illegible] investigators admit they've set numerous traps for the ruthless romeo, but each time the elusive extortionist has managed to slip through their fingers.

"I guess you could say this catnapper has nine lives," said one frustrated cop.

Peeing pooches short out sidewalk lighting system!

TIBURON, Calif. — The city's $38,000 sidewalk lighting system is slowly shorting out — because dogs mistake the foot-tall lights for fire hydrants.

Needless-to-say, city officials are more than peeved about the peeing pooches, whose wee-legged salute to the lights is costing taxpayers about $200 a month.

"All it takes is one dog to pee on it, and then it's over," Public Works Director Tony Iacopi said. "Every dog in the world wants to pee on them.

"They are corroding all the fixtures and all the wiring."

Persuading dog owners to curb their pets hasn't worked. They just don't get the message.

"If we are going to rely on the education of people to monitor their animals, these things never happen," Town Manager Bob Kleinert said.

Kleinert is budgeting $4,500 next year to repair the lights, but he says it may be cheaper to scrap the system and replace it with out-of-reach fixtures.

MY AMERICA

I'm REALLY pig-biting mad over this!

VEGETARIAN MILITIA WANTS TO BAN MEAT IN U.S.!

Here it is, the Fourth of July, and I'm madder than a pig at a barbecue at all those loony-tunes vegetarians who're screaming their heads off for a ban on meat-eating in this great country of ours.

A gang of nearly 4,000 wild-eyed animal lovers stormed into the World Pork Exposition in Chicago a couple of weeks ago squealing about how Americans shouldn't be eating bacon, ham, pork chops or those luscious racks of ribs we've all come to love — especially at this time of year.

But when you read the list of demands they recently presented to President Clinton, you'll discover the looks also want to outlaw the sale of beef, poultry and even some kinds of fish, for crying out loud.

These skinny bleeding-heart wimps claim that eating animals is cruel and that digging into a slab of meat makes us fat and leads to heart attacks.

Well, eatyuuuuuuuuuu me!

I say, if the Good Lord didn't want us to eat steaks and pork chops, He wouldn't have given us such sharp teeth, now would He?

But of course, if these health food freaks get their way we won't need the wonderful choppers God gave us because we'll all be munching bananas and nutritious seeds.

And what about the old-fashioned Fourth of July cookout? The backyard barbecue is a basic American right handed down from the caveman and the Indians who once roamed this great land.

Hey, I think baby piglets are as cute as bunnies, but let's face it — NOBODY who gets a whiff of some juicy chops sizzling on the grill is gonna give a rat's behind about how cute and cuddly they once were. All any REAL American cares about is how they taste.

Which brings us to the good ol' all-American hot dog. If you think you're an animal lover, try eating an asparagus sandwich the next time you go to a baseball game!

When I was a boy, one of my favorite meals was bog bratsen and kielchigs. In fact, Grandma Anger, God bless her soul, used to say that eating red meat and pork parts would make you smarter — and I'm taking proof that she was right, by gum.

I still make it a point to eat a plate of pork at least four times a week and three helpings of red meat on Sunday, whether I want it or not.

I hate to break it to you kids, but I'd eat Porky Pig himself in a heartbeat.

And if anybody's wondering, the family swebrunes tells me I'm as healthy as a hitrat — which is another thing I'd eat if one were landed on my platter.

ED ANGER loves Porky Pig so much, he'd eat him in a minute!

Health nuts out there: Keep your little brains warm on the Fourth of July cookout — or you'll be the next chunk of meat on the lucky family barbecue!

From the desk of Ed Anger

Have a happy and healthy Fourth of July!

Brew made from jungle plant helps tribe recall past lives — anytime they want!

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A French anthropologist studying jungle Indians northeast of the capital says he has found a tribe whose members drink an incredible magic beverage that allows them to relive their past lives!

"The brew is made from the root of the rare plant called Putbo that grows near the Indians' mahogany forest home.

It has the power to trigger "visions" in which the user has another body another identity and is living in another time.

HARVARD PROFESSOR'S SHOCKING CLAIM:

People really do have sex with space aliens!

By JACK ALEXANDER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Dr. John Mack was a well respected Harvard University psychiatry professor until he began talking about treating patients who've had sex with space aliens.

Now he is considered a quack by many of his high-brow colleagues who want to kick him out of the prestigious Ivy League school.

Will his crusade for the truth cost him his job?

PULITZER PRIZE-winning professor, Dr. John Mack, has put his career on the line because of his shocking new book, Abduction: Human Encounters with Aliens

Shoe salesman can't help looking up women's dresses!

Confidentially

Dear Mitch in Chicago: If you really want to get my attention stop sending mash) — and fork over some champagne!

Dear Searching Hope in Reno: That's what you get for "cooking" on the stove!

Dear Wants to L.A.: The vast majority of Californians are shameless — and you're no exception!

Dear Confused in Wingate: Don't be stupid. A first doctor has no right to make you strip for an examination!

Dear Desirous in Chicago: If it "hurts that much," why don't you go all the way and try it with a man?

Dear Peeping in Hartford: Sorry, but I don't know of any "embarrassment procedure" that would apply to a case like yours.

Dear Proud Mom in Arvin: I'm sure you love your son but he's flew facts — working part-time to keep himself in marijuana is hardly what I'd call "moving up!"

Dear Dotti: You recently published a letter from a woman who accused a shoe salesman of looking up her dress while he was fitting her with a new pair of shoes. You called the salesman a creep, but you were way out of line.

I sell shoes. And I'm here to say that you can't help but see up a woman's dress when you're helping her find something she likes. If you don't believe me, put on a short skirt sit in front of a mirror and extend your leg as if you were trying on a shoe. Our peek in the mirror will show you EXACTLY what I mean! — Salesman in Topeka

Dear Salesman: I got a lot of similar letters but this one takes the cake. If I wanted to see up my own dress I wouldn't sit in front of a mirror with my leg extended. I'd stand in front of a mirror after I stepped out of my bath — and get a REAL eyeful!

Stubborn hubby won't give up his smoking & boozing!

Dear Dotti: My husband promised to stop smoking and drinking a few months ago but he's puffing more cigs and guzzling more booze than ever. I've been nagging him to stick to his guns but he just laughs in my face. Is there anything I can do? He's ruining his health and I can't just stand by and watch. — Disappointed in New York

Dear Disappointed: Take out a big insurance policy on the moron's life. If he's bound and determined to kill himself, the least he can do is make you rich.

I'm terrified of toilets and I don't know what to do!

Dear Dotti: I know you're not going to believe this, but I'm a 33-year-old woman who is terrified of toilets. I haven't been able to use one for three years now because I'm afraid a snake or a rat will come up and grab me while I'm sitting on the pot. I've seen this happen in dreams and I'm scared to death. My husband says my phobia is all in my head but I'm scared. Help! — Holding in Hampton

Dear Holding: The only I can tell you can do one of two things: Take a loaded gun to the bathroom with you — or get a shrink fast.

How can I tell my friend she eats like a pig?

Dear Dotti: A dear friend of mine smacks when she eats and it drives me up the wall. How can I tell her she's disgusting without hurting her feelings? — Pot Up in Trenton

Dear Pot Up: Stop walking on egg shells and tell your friend the truth. If she doesn't shape up and start chewing with her mouth closed, give her the boot.

Dotti, do you know that you're one smart cookie?

Dear Dotti: I just wanted to tell you something you already know. You're one smart cookie. And Weekly World News is darn lucky to have a columnist like you! — Pan in Washington

Dear Pan: Thanks for taking the time to write, Mr. President! While you're at it, tell the wife and kid hello!

Ann Landers-brand Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave. Lantana, Fla. 33462. We'll forward your letters to her.

Ask Serena

Is hubby going to die if I dream about his funeral?

Dear Serena: Every night I dream that my husband dies. After his funeral I move back home with my parents and fall in love with a childhood friend.

I love my husband dearly, Serena, and this dream is scaring me to death. What does it mean? I feel so guilty when I wake up in the morning that I think I'm going to go insane. — Weird in Boston

Dear Weird: The meaning of your dreams is really quite simple. You're clinging to the past because you are afraid of growing older. I sense that your future and says that you will soon resolve this conflict. When you do, you will stop having this dream — and feel the contentment that you richly deserve, possibly because you aren't really sure whether you want your husband back or not. Once you make up your mind, your future will be much clearer. Meanwhile, you should do everything possible to get your own life, thoughts and wishes on track.

Dear Serena: I think you're the greatest psychic ever. The thing is, I've written to you five times and have never gotten an answer. My problem — money trouble — was solved haven't you answered my letters? — Sally in Miami

Dear Sally: Each week I receive 4,000 to 7,000 letters and I simply cannot answer them all. I do pray and meditate over ALL of the letters I get and try my best to bring luck and good fortune to everyone who writes.

will react badly to too much scolding and will become introverted when hurt. But he's a quick starter, and probably will talk early and surprise you with his observations.

GIRL — She is aware of her own needs and the needs of those around her, is lovable, sensitive, and looks to her parents as shining examples.

Perfection is her goal, and she can be fussy and determined, and preoccupied with her appearance and well-being almost from the time she can look in a mirror. But she is still strong in self-confidence.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 - Oct. 23

BOY — He is graceful, naturally polite and tactful. Aware of his power to charm, he will use it. However, he's not as soft as he appears — there can be shows of temper. He expects fair play and would make a good referee. He's intuitive and his first instinct is most likely the accurate one, so try to trust in him the courage of his first convictions. He lacks confidence in many ways, but rarely shows it. He's not a physical type, and is more interested in books, paintings and music.

GIRL — She can command attention through her charm and by a tiny crooking of her little finger — even though she lacks prettiness — because she's an expert in keeping up appearances as well as wielding an iron fist in a velvet glove. You may not be able to get as close to her as you would like because she won't allow it. And she will learn only what she considers important. Mood swings can also occur. She loves to do little things to please you.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

BOY — He's serious, in-

on to his mind. He needs discipline from the start. He loves a good fight and often wins. He wears his own way and can be fearsome in his dogged determination. Channel his courage and energy into games and sports. He has a competitive machinery and will work hard and tirelessly for those he loves.

GIRL — This quiet child is a bundle of energy. She rarely loses a battle or forgets the offense that caused it, and her determination and single-mindedness to please a role model or person swiftly and accurately. Her calm exterior covers a seething mass of emotion.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

BOY — He's intelligent with an insatiable curiosity. He will instinctively know if you're out to hurt him by it. It's not his nature to deceive and he must live with his passionate values be what you all. This child is going places academically and otherwise fast. He badly needs an audience. A little practical jokes. He who him will never be dull.

GIRL — She is a good natured, charming, enthusiastic, curious little tomboy inside. She needs your attention constantly because her curiosity and adventurous spirit may lead her into countless situations. She is trustworthy, as long as she can believe in what she trusts, but because she's quick and restless, it may make it hard to keep tabs on her.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

BOY — Patience and perseverance are among his finer qualities, along with originality and punctuality. He doesn't depend on your constant love and attention.

He's an introvert. He may have to be taught that life can be fun, but while he'll rarely initiate a joke he'll enjoy a good laugh. Economy in words and actions is his motto, and he's a born realist.

GIRL — This little girl will never lose her solemn sense of dignity. Her innate knowledge of the correct thing to do and say can be unnerving. Her language and an early lesson will irritate her. She's not an early starter in walking or talking, but when she does start she'll be deliberate, careful and precise.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

BOY — This child's manners and per-cuddling and kissing, and he's convinced his way is right. He's a strange mixture of caveman and space explorer, but much more intellectual than physical. His cheerful disposition often hides an agitated interior of extreme intensity.

GIRL — She'll prove early in life that she dances to the beat of a different drum. Wandering in her dream world, she is accident prone. She lives in the future, and her intuition can be astounding. This makes her highly nervous, anxious, and impatient — but not hurtful — when she sees stupidity in others. Her curiosity is boundless. She can be affectionate, but also distinctly distant. She's naturally intelligent, but gets bored very easily. When she does apply herself she'll surprise you with her knowledge.

PISCES
Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

BOY — He was born to dream and sometimes loses sight of the difference between fact and fiction. But he is reliable, yet easygoing. He's also kind, sensing the sad needs of others needs. He will never intentionally hurt anyone. His gentleness can appear a weakness, but he has inner strength. Encourage his efforts.

GIRL — Her whole existence is a succession of fantasies. For her the world is a stage and she can be quite a character, playing on your emotions. She's dainty, gentle, extraordinarily sympathetic and enjoys comforting others. As a child, she can be a wanderer, and time means nothing — she is entirely wrapped up in her dream world. She reacts badly to a schedule of rigid routine and discipline making

FITNESS FANATIC Ralph Federston runs five miles every day while pushing and steering his car.

When this man goes for a jog he takes his car with him

By LISA MIRANTI Weekly World News

...and steers it through the driver's window!

CHICAGO — Sports fanatic Ralph Federton has the world's weirdest jogging routine. The fitness freak runs five miles every day — rolling his car along with him!

Federton, 31, believes pushing his car bulks up his muscles and strengthens his cardiovascular system at the same time. So he puts his light blue Hyundai in neutral and pulls it along beside him as he runs.

"I get a much better workout because I'm moving so much weight," the athlete says. "And when I've finished my jog, I can climb into my air-conditioned car and drive home. That beats having to turn around and retrace my steps on foot."

Federton, a sports equipment salesman, says he first started his bizarre fitness routine two years ago after he began to feel he wasn't getting a satisfactory workout with his normal jogging.

For a time he loaded bricks into his wheelbarrow and jogged with it through suburban streets getting a pulse-pounding workout from his burden.

"But I realized that if I was going to wheel hundreds of pounds of bricks through the street, I might as well push my car," he recalled. "I figured that way jogging would be more interesting because I could run farther, see new sights — and then drive home when I was finished."

So every morning since the snow melted in March, Federton has taken to the streets in his jogging clothes, his little blue car by his side. He runs at a steady pace — about six miles an hour — keeping his hand on the steering wheel through the open car window.

"I try to choose routes where there aren't very many stop signs or traffic lights," the muscle-bound runner explains.

TV TALK SHOWS CAN IMPROVE YOUR LIFE!

Just by watching talk shows, you can improve your life, declares an expert.

"Hosts like Oprah, Donahue, Regis and Kathie Lee uncover the most fascinating qualities of ordinary people and experts alike," says leading psychiatrist Alfred Cuadley. "It's not only great entertainment, it can make your life better."

That's because talk shows:

● Give you free advice on personal matters. By tuning in, you get the best tips about nutrition, weight control, fashion, problem-solving and other vital topics.

"Daily Jenny Raphael, for instance, did a show about teenage girls who dress too suggestively," said Dr. Cuadley.

"As their parents aired their concerns, viewers could learn how these families struggled to resolve the problem. Excellent tips were provided on how to cope with this same issue."

● Improve family relationships. A common subject on talk shows, for example, is extramarital affairs.

As guests recount their experiences, you can learn what may drive a spouse into an affair — and how you can help prevent it.

● Help you understand human behavior. One of Geraldo Rivera's topmost shows dealt with women who fall in love with mass murderers. Viewers gained insight into what makes people tick by learning why ordinary women find these men appealing.

● Enrich compassion. Talk shows provide you with an emotional outlet. "If Oprah Winfrey's guests share their experiences, you can sympathize with the victims' pain, fear and shame. You become a more sensitive person," said Dr. Cuadley.

● Overcome feelings of isolation. "One time or another, most people feel isolated and alone," said the psychiatrist.

"Watching a talk show helps you feel connected to other people because guests reveal intimate things about themselves. Just feeling closer to other people can help you overcome a lonely time in your own life."

● Learn valuable talk show hosts' techniques that you can adapt and use in your life. Watch Geraldo or Donahue use humor to defuse a tense moment or relax a guest. Study how Sally Jenny Raphael and Oprah express true concern for people going through difficulties. And learn to have a little of Kathie Lee's bubbly, full-of-life charm.

How to say "I love you" — without using words

By DORIS HANLEY, Rising Star Staff Writer

You don't have to say "I love you" to show someone you really care — your actions can speak louder than words, says an expert.

"Sometimes it's the nonverbal messages that are stronger and more meaningful," explained Dr. Dianne Peters, a prominent gay clinician.

Here are her tips on how to express your love:

♥ Use body language. "Simply holding hands when you're with your partner is a very powerful love message," said Dr. Peters. "Unexpected hugs or a quick peck on the cheek are other nonverbal ways to communicate love."

♥ Make eye contact. Gaze into your loved one's eyes with a flirtatious glance or special look. That route will get the message.

♥ Slip a note into your partner's purse or briefcase with a romantic come-on like, "I can't wait to see you tonight" or "I'm thinking of you." Another idea is to leave your lover IOU's like "YOU owe me this evening" or "YOU a special dinner tonight."

♥ Take note of the things your partner enjoys, such as a love message or a movie date. Each day, do one of them.

♥ Give your sweetheart a special meal. Set the table with your best dishes. Get some flowers, light candles and chill a bottle of wine or champagne. Put on your partner's favorite music and relax.

♥ Write a poem for your loved one. A poem can be reread over and over again. It's a keepsake that says "I love you" for years.

♥ Wear clothes your loved one likes. Splash on his favorite perfume or her favorite cologne. If your partner has given you jewelry, wear it — it shows you appreciate the gift.

People that begin this week turned out very well and achieve success from an unlikely standpoint.

Be prepared for a mechanical failure of some kind — your car or a major household kitchen appliance.

Don't let your best interests here with compromising and your more as pool ups will return.

Your financial situation will improve greatly in this area.

TAURUS
April 20 – May 20

This week will be lucky for you. Games of chance, sudden bursts and short-term investments should pay off handsomely.

Be careful not to overspend this weekend with friends. Keep your distance from them, stay cool and the situation will get better.

Strange things could surface when your spouse makes derisive comments. Don't let it.

GEMINI

This week is challenging, but you will prove you are capable of handling a heavy load successfully and will take anything distant out to you.

That new person you've had your eye on is in a true catch. Make your move before the other sharks beat you to it!

Expect a problem with creditors when an important letter goes astray or a computer error goes undiscovered.

CANCER
June 21 – July 22

Make plans early this week. Opportunities arise which normally would be too prominent social affairs.

Major troubles can surface when you and your partner have a disagreement about how to spend it. Wait until the short-tempers fizzle to compromise or reconcile.

Take some time out from your busy schedule to update your world view. It's harder to shield.

LEO
July 23 – Aug. 22

Be prepared this week for some heavy flirting and teasing.

A friend will arrive from out of town with news that will brighten your outlook.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 – Oct. 22

Don't be too quick to criticize or slip out your hard-earned cash to help finance a friend's get-rich-quick scheme. Be careful.

Your sense of humor gets you through a sticky situation with workplace, but then your boss gets jealous when an old flame calls.

Preparation will be in over the weekend when routine chores seem endless and boring.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

Your single-minded determination will pay off and progress will result sooner to completion.

However, you will start to feel a little low this week.

Make time to get out and play.

The weekend will be very romantic for the single ones.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

It might be an easy decision this week to remain in start out early to avoid a dangerous traffic situation.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 – Jan. 19

You'll rule high with this week when exercising plans and the crystal ball suggesting the obvious.

POT BELLY?

If you want to flatten your stomach and trim your waist, you should learn about a new book, 3 Simple Steps to Flatten Your Belly. The book shows you a simple and fun way to give yourself a flat, firm stomach—even if other attempts to lose your pot belly failed

Why It's So Hard to Get Rid of a Pot Belly

Incredibly, some stomach programs only make your pot belly worse. You see, some stomach programs may actually build up and bind the muscles in your stomach without removing the fat—making your stomach appear larger and puffier. What's more, exercises that work on your "love handles" (the area of your waist) can actually bulk muscle and increase the overall size of your waist. Even worse, some so-called stomach exercises don't even work your stomach—they can merely strain your back and neck

Why The Program Will Flatten Your Belly

This book shows you a simple program that won't bulge out or puff up your stomach but actually burns it flat, so your stomach becomes slimmer, firmer and firmer. And the program is designed to flatten your stomach without straining your back or neck. What's more, this program shows you how to remove layers of fat around your belly. The book tells you about "fat melting" foods that work in conjunction with the exercise program to break down and flush away pockets of fat and fat around your midsection. This program launches an all-out assault on the bulging fat cells around your waistline

Following this program should transform your pat belly from an eighth fat to a flat, trim and sexy waistline. A firm, flat belly makes you look and feel better. Your posture often improves while sagging back problems often disappear

Forget about expensive exercise equipment, health spas and starvation diets. This belly-flattening program must work for you or you pay nothing. This book is being made available for only $12.95 plus $2 postage and handling. To order, send name and address with pay check to United Research Publishers, 101 North Highway

CHEATING HUBBIES PREFER SEX WITH THEIR WIVES!

By JOSEPH RAYMOND

Many men who have affairs say sex is better with their wife than their mistress!

That's the fascinating new finding of Dr. Donald Reed and other university experts who recently studied adultery.

What's more, a survey cited by Carol Brown, author of Men Who Court Be Faithful, found that 87 percent of straying husbands rated the sex in their marriage "very pleasurable" — but only 46 percent gave the same rating to sex in affairs.

"In my work as a sex therapist, I find time and again that many men find the sex they get from their wives better than from the other woman," said Dr. Reed.

BEAUTY'S BIZARRE CONDITION BAFFLES SCIENTISTS

By KEVIN CREED
Weekly World News

Mirrors shatter when this woman walks near them!

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Baffled scientists are trying to understand why mirrors shatter when Lucy Benawell gets near them!

When the pretty blonde radio dispatcher stands close to any reflective glass surface for 30 to 45 seconds, it begins to develop tiny cracks. If she doesn't move away, the cracks expand and, within five minutes, glass is flying in all directions.

"We simply have no explanation for this incredible phenomenon," said Dr. Maurice Clavinow, the noted physicist who has been studying Miss Benawell for the past nine months.

Dr. Maurice Clavinow.

"Our instruments have determined that there's a powerful electrical force field surrounding her. But we don't know why it has such an adverse effect on mirrors and windows. There's no scientific precedent for it. It's never happened before."

Miss Benawell, 31, says the strange incidents began about a year ago. The first one occurred the morning after she returned from a vacation in Egypt where she had visited the Great Pyramids.

"I was drying my hair at the bathroom mirror," she says. "I saw that the mirror was cracking at all four corners. And I thought, 'Gee, I never noticed those cracks before.'

"It never occurred to me that I was causing the cracks."

But as she stood there, the cracks grew larger, moving inward toward the center of the mirror. Finally the mirror shattered. Later, the exact same thing happened in the rear door of the delivery wagon where she manages a staff of seven dispatchers.

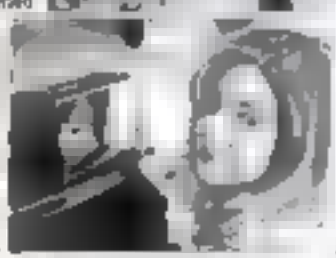
"I have to be careful not to stand by a window too long," she says. "If the lighting is wrong, my reflection will break the glass — and sometimes those breaks are sudden and violent. Shaving glass improves so far as it goes through the air. Now I'm forced to use my tweezer's side as a mirror, since it don't affect metal."

Dr. Clavinow III, was called in by the science department of a noted Pennsylvania college where Miss Benawell had gone for help.

Officials at the school were aware of Dr. Clavinow's ground breaking research on the power of the mind on inanimate objects. "We're known for years that the pyramids contain electro-magnetic power," he says.

"But we're not yet ready to say there's any provable correlation between her visit to Egypt and the breakage of the mirrors. We simply don't know what causes them to break."

UNLUCKY LUCY Benawell rarely gets more than two inches away from a mirror without causing it to shatter.



BIZARRE condition forces Lucy to use her tweezer as a vanity mirror, since her presence has no effect on metal.

7 common myths about food!

By SANDRA LEE / Weekly World News

Do you really know anything about what you eat? Probably not!

Studies have revealed that people have shockingly little about food. Here are a few of the most common food myths.

1. Pasta, bread and other starches are fattening.

Wrong, wrong, wrong. This myth probably comes from the fact that bread is so filling that it makes you feel fat. Starches are carbohydrates that have less than half as many calories as an equal amount of fat.

But be careful. A lot of people put creamy sauces on top of the pasta — and that's what turns them into whales.

2. Sugar makes kids hyperactive.

Parents have always said this — and they're always been wrong. Researchers say that heavy doses of sugar make the brain produce something called serotonin that can even make kids sleepy.

The way this crazy idea about hyperactivity started was that kids often eat sweets at times when they're excited anyway — like at birthday parties or Christmas.

3. The best pizza comes from Italy.

The best pizza in the world is made right here in the United States, experts say. And according to a recent survey in a popular travel magazine. Italian pizza even ranks behind what you would find at restaurants in France, Switzerland and Portugal.

4. Exercise makes you hungry.

It might make you thirsty but experts say that the workout will make your body crave calories. And if you exercise enough, you get fat transfused into your bloodstream — and that makes you lose your appetite.

5. Vegetarians are the healthiest people in the world.

Bad news for you broccoli lovers. If you don't eat enough animal products like eggs and milk, you're running dangerously low on nutrients, iron, copper, zinc and other important vitamins.

6. Eating Chinese food makes you smart.

There is a trend among college students to eat a lot of Chinese food before exams, because they believe it makes them smarter. This belief, however, is stupid.

Extensive research involving students eating Chinese food before math tests showed no measurable improvement in their test scores.

7. Between-meal snacks are bad for you.

Go right ahead and eat all day long. Experts say your body needs a certain number of calories and it doesn't matter whether it gets them at one meal or spread out over seven or eight snacks.

HEAVY DOSES OF SUGAR do not make kids hyperactive. In fact, scientists say eating lots of sugar can actually make children sleepy.

People do crazy things to impress classmates at school reunions!

High school reunions show how really stupid people can be in trying to impress old classmates they haven't seen in years and may never see again.

They go on crash diets, rearrange their face and other body parts with plastic surgery, or shell out their savings and even red, ritzy cars to look rich.

"They'll do whatever they can to be perceived as more attractive," said Michael Taleb of the University of Texas at Austin.

It's human nature for people to want to look as much as possible like they did in high school, but they're fighting a losing battle with diets, face-lifts, tummy tucks and bomb jobs says fitness director Heather Ens.

Some folks attend class reunions to find out if the handsome high school hunks have become wrinkled fatsos, if the prom queen got ugly or if the jocks turned to booze when their glory days ended.

Others want to spite their high school tormentors, rekindle old flames, compare family photos or talk about old times.

More often than not, the class nerd is now worth a fortune and the one voted "most likely to succeed" really did. But you have to go there to find out.

BATS SLEEP WHEN THEY FLY, SAY EXPERTS!

Experts say birds can rest on the wing — and even get a little shut-eye.

Some birds, such as those who fly over oceans when on migrating, spend as many as 50

Lose 10 lbs. a month — just by keeping cool!

PARIS — Fatties can stuff their faces and still lose up to 10 pounds a month — just by keeping cool!

That's the fascinating conclusion of renowned French weight-loss expert Dr. Paul-Robert Thomas. The specialist says there are two kinds of calories that make us fat — food calories and warmth calories — and that it's easier to get rid of the warmth calories.

Dr. Thomas recommends starting the day with a cold shower and calling another one before each meal. He also Frightened Steven Penton held on to the sewer grate for dear life and screamed for help as torrents of water roared by his dangling feet.

The boy's frantic cries were heard by nearby scrapyard worker Mike Oliveto Jr. who looked around but couldn't see where the screams were coming from.

Then Oliveto looked down the drain and saw the boy's mother, Wanda Penton, 21, standing on tiptoe inside and talking to a cop.

"I thought it was strange," Oliveto recalled. "Where was the kid?"

Most country music fans are upper-class yuppies!

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music fans are often portrayed as being good ol' boys and girls who work hard, play hard, cheat on their mates and drink like fish.

In fact, the vast majority of fans make their homes on East Street — and lead boring, upper-class lives!

According a new nationwide survey:

● Seven of 10 country fans live in households with incomes of $125,000 plus.

● Eight of 10 don't smoke or drink.

● Nine of 10 have never been busted, fished or ridden a horse.

● Eight of 10 have never even thought about being unfaithful to a spouse much less considered a divorce!

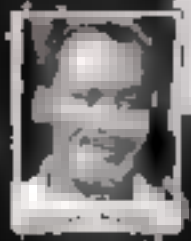
FIRST BLACK ALIEN FOUND



YUMA, Ariz. — The discovery of a dead extraterrestrial on a hillside in the Palomas Mountains has mystified federal investigators who say the creature had black, metallic skin, fish-like gills — and stood 8 feet tall.

Nobody knows where the creature came from, nor do they know how long the body might have been lying undetected on the mountainside.

Because the extraterrestrial's anatomy is so different from our own, scientists have been unable to determine the cause of deterioration, which leaves them wondering if the alien was just hours or millions of years old when it died.

"This is rapidly developing into one of the greatest UFO mysteries of living memory," said author and UFO expert Samuel Shibata, who has worked closely with the [illegible] a number of UFO [illegible]

"One of the most striking features was a set of gills on either side of the creature's neck, indicating that it had the ability to extract oxygen or some other component from a liquid environment. Its skin was black and had a dull metallic sheen," he continued. "The eyes, nose and mouth were, for want of a better word, understated. They weren't nearly as pronounced as those you find on humans."

The extraterrestrial is currently undergoing an autopsy and it is unclear when, if ever, the FBI will make the results public, Mullins said.

"All I've heard is that cellular life forms on Earth, which are carbon based, the alien was chromium based," he continued.

"That doesn't give us much to go on, but it would account for the metallic sheen of the flesh."

EXPERT'S NINE SECRETS TO COMMUNICATING WITH THE OPPOSITE SEX

Men and women really don't know how to communicate with each other, says Dr. Lillian Glass in her new book [redacted]. But they can close the communications gap between them by following a few of her expert pointers.

SUSAN ROSS
Newsday Feature Service

FOR MEN . . .

Here's what men need to do to communicate better with women:

- When you are asking a woman a question, don't fidget and rock back and forth. It gives the impression that you're not interested in what she is saying.
- Look directly at a woman as you talk. Don't stare. Just keep looking in her direction.
- Respond to topics a woman brings up. Don't try to change the subject and don't interrupt.
- When listening to a woman, give her more immediate feedback. Interject "uh-huhs" and nod more.
- When a woman asks you a question, don't give responses like "yup," "nope" or "maybe." Give a complete answer and then ask what you mean.
- Don't assume to know what conversation, ask her questions.
- Don't ever use mind games on a woman. Never say, "Tell me this or that" but "please" and use terms of endearment such as "honey" or "darling" if you're involved with her.
- Save your dirty and practical jokes for your male friends. Women really don't appreciate this type of humor.
- Talk about subjects that women find interesting such as self-improvement, clothing and relationships.

FOR WOMEN . . .

Here's how women can communicate better with men.

- Become more comfortable talking about yourself. It gives people a more realistic sense of who you are.
- Watch your use of curse words. This can be a turnoff for men.
- If you find someone being rude, sarcastic or insulting, don't keep your feelings inside. Express your self.
- Don't let a man interrupt you. If he does, say, "Excuse me, I'm not finished."
- Try to talk about things men enjoy discussing such as sports, news events, automobiles and music.
- Don't be afraid to approach a man and ask him out. If he rejects you, don't let it affect your self-esteem.
- If a man has problems opening up, don't push him to talk. Help him by asking open-ended questions and talking about things he is interested in.
- When you talk, hold the sound of your head up. Your eyes should be level with the eyes of the person you're talking to.
- During arguments, don't bring up past problems. Stick to the issues at hand and try to resolve

THE MAN WHO COULDN'T DIE!

GRATEFUL TO BE ALIVE: Robert Bullard tried to take his life by downing booze and drugs, slashing his wrists, hanging himself and putting his head into a gas oven.

By RICHARD [illegible] (Weekly World Star)

Robert Bullard tried to kill himself an incredible six times in one day — and each time he bungled his suicide miserably!

On his final try, Bullard did manage to blow the roof off a house and injure two people — but he escaped unhurt!

"I was a crazy fool," Bullard admitted. "It's only by the grace of God I'm here."

Things looked bleak for the 33-year-old Englishman in March 1986.

He'd been laid off from his job and was moving from friend's house to friend's house, while he desperately searched for work.

"One day, when I was alone at my father's house, something snapped," Bullard said. "I decided to kill myself. I bought a six-pack of beauty ale plus a bottle of extra-strength over-the-counter painkillers.

"I popped a handful of painkillers into my mouth and then washed them down with a beer. I kept taking the pills — a total of 24 — and the beer until they were all gone. Then I passed out.

"But incredibly, a few hours later I woke up. 'Damn, I didn't do the job right,' I told myself."

Next he tried to slit his wrists with a kitchen knife. "I hacked away at my wrists, but the knife wouldn't cut," he said. "The blade was as dull as wood.

"I lurched to my father's one against the wall and, finally it broke and I got a piece of blade. I slashed at my wrists — and blood spurted out. I went to the floor and passed out again."

But it still wasn't Bullard's day to die. "A half hour later I grudgingly regained my senses," he said.

"I was covered in blood, but somehow the bleeding had stopped. I went to the kitchen, switched on the gas oven without lighting it — and stuck my head in. 'Hundreds of people have died this way,' I thought. 'It's the way I'll go, too!' I kept my head in the oven for what seemed like a half an hour until I finally realized nothing was happening."

He gave up before the gas to the window blinds. I tied it around my neck, climbed to the top of the couch and jumped off. But the darned cord broke.

"I tried the gas oven for another 15 minutes, but then my legs started to cramp from kneeling in that awkward position. Disillusioned, I crawled away and lay down on the floor."

And that's when his father's girlfriend and another pal arrived — and became alarmed because they smelled gas. "As they opened the door to the kitchen, a gust of air whooshed toward," said Bullard. "The gas in the room connected with a pilot light of a heater — and there was a gigantic explosion. A fireball three feet across roared through the room and out the doorway.

"The entire roof of the house was blown off and a whole wall of the kitchen was demolished."

Bullard was unconscious — but unhurt!

The other two people were rushed to the hospital with burns. "They have since completely recovered," he said. "Total damage to the house was around $50,000."

Bullard was later found guilty by a London court of endangering property with reckless intent. He was given a two-year suspended jail sentence.

"I never meant to harm anyone but myself," he said. "I was an utter fool. Now I have a good

LOOK WHAT'S HAPPENED TO THE WORLD'S SEXIEST MODEL

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

NEW YORK CITY — Slinky Serena Hawser was one of the world's hottest high-fashion models till she traded her carrot sticks and cottage cheese for burgers and bonbons — and ballooned into a 300-pound porker in the blink of an eye!

Fashion queen of the 1990s balloons to 300-lb. porker — in 3 years!

And incredibly, now-lovely Serena, 28, says she's happier as a chocolate-gobbling chubbo than she ever was as a blonde bombshell.

"I was leading a pretty glamorous life back then, jetting from Paris to Rome to New York, getting my picture on magazine covers around the world and dating some of the richest men alive," the lush-of-lard lady recalled.

"It was the kind of life I'd dreamed of since I was a little girl, but the truth is, I was miserable. I had to watch every bite of food I ate and I was terrified to step on the scales in the morning for fear I might have gained a couple of ounces.

"My face and my body had become the most important things in my life. I had money, fame, fancy clothes, everything a girl could ask for — but I could never relax and just enjoy myself."

All that began to change, though, one fateful day in 1987 when wee Serena showed up at a family picnic at her parents' guest of honor at this reunion — but none again, everybody was turning her but me," the blubbery belle said with a sigh. "My sis-

Purse snatcher chokes to death on $50 bill

By JACK ALEXANDER / Weekly World News

BUFFALO, N.Y. — No one can ever say suspected purse snatcher Kenneth Arnold didn't put his money where his mouth was. Unfortunately, it killed him.

Arnold, 39, tried to hide the evidence by swallowing a $50 bill, but he apparently bit off more than he could chew.

An autopsy revealed Arnold died of accidental asphyxiation.

The robbery victim — a woman in her 40s whose identity wasn't released by cops — had been knocked to the pavement in a shopping center parking lot around 9:40 p.m., said Police Detective Charles Fiorenzano.

The crook grabbed her purse and disappeared into the night. He was nabbed about an hour later by police in nearby Kenmore. Arnold collapsed in the back seat of a police cruiser shortly after he complained of breathing problems caused by an asthma attack.

He was trying to hide the evidence, say cops

"He may have had asthma problems but that wasn't why he couldn't breathe. He tried to get rid of the evidence and the bill lodged in his throat," Det. Fiorenzano explained.

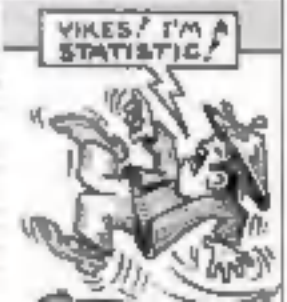
Arnold was rushed to a hospital, where he died a short time later. "Desperate people do foolish things," the detective said.

"Strong-arm robbery is a serious crime, but it isn't worth dying for."

It's a real man-eat-dog world!

Animal-rights protestors in Minden, Germany, are barking up a storm over the opening of a new Korean restaurant that features stir-fried dog on its menu. But restaurant owners say they have no intention of taking their "canine cuisine" off the menu, because dog is considered a real delicacy in Korea.

CHINA BANS WATERMELONS!



BEIJING — The Chinese government has issued a strict ban against eating watermelon in public — after more than 10,000 people were injured by slipping on discarded rinds in one month alone!

"The people are so careless, they simply toss the rinds on the sidewalk rather than putting them in garbage receptacles," said a health ministry spokesman. "Then someone comes along and nearly breaks his neck on the thing."
